Calendar Suggestions

What can you do with blank calendar pages? More than you would think! You can use them in your role as a teacher, and you can also use them with students. Unlike wall calendars or journal-style calendars, these pages are 8 1/2" by 11" so they're perfect for duplicating and keeping in a 3-ring binder or notebook. Consider these options:

- Instructional Planning - Create instructional timelines for teaching subject areas or special units.
- Personal Meeting Planner - Keep a copy of each month's calendar page in the front of your planbook to note important meetings and personal deadlines.
- Literature Circle Schedules - Give them to students to use when planning their reading page assignments and meeting dates.
- Attendance Graphing - Have students track attendance and tardies by using stickers or color-coding to identify dates that they arrive at school on time. (For detailed instructions, see the Goal Setting Power Pack available from Teaching Resources at www.lauracandler.com)
- Project Planning and Organization - Teach students to use the calendars to divide their projects into manageable segments. They can set mini-deadlines to keep themselves on track.
- Homework Planner - Have students jot down homework and other assignments for a single subject area.
- Classroom Event Calendar - Mark all your important events, test dates, and deadlines on one calendar page. Duplicate and send home to parents to keep as a handy reference.
- Home Reading Log - Have students keep a monthly calendar in their homework folders to use for recording minutes of reading. Just ask parents to write in the minutes and initial each time they read.
- Customized Calendars - This calendar is in PDF format and can't be modified. However, you can purchase a Microsoft Publisher version of the calendar that you can personalize by adding your own graphics and text. Look for the School Year Calendar at www.lauracandler.com.
