Chinese New Year Literacy Activities

Free!

SAM AND THE

Chinese New Year Literacy Activities

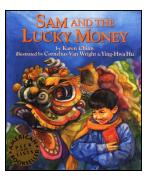

This packet includes two literacy activities for studying or celebrating the Chinese New Year. Both were designed for cooperative learning teams, but they work equally well with partners or in a small guided reading group. For more seasonal activities, visit the Seasonal page on Teaching Resources. Be sure to follow my TpT store to be notified when I add new freebies and other resources. I hope you enjoy these materials! ~ Laura Candler

1. Comparing New Years Venn Diagram

This activity contains fact cards with information about the Chinese New Year and the American New Year. Students take turns sorting them onto the Venn Diagram. You can have your students do this after reading aloud a non-fiction book like Chinese New Year for Kids or after having students research facts about the Chinese New Year. Or you can use it as a "hook" prior to reading the book and conducting research. Students take turns placing the cards onto the Venn diagram and then read or research to verify the correct placement of the cards.

2. Sam and the Lucky Money Discussion Cards Use these discussion cards after reading Sam and the Lucky Money to your students. This is a touching story with a wonderful message about what it means to be lucky. These cards work great with the Talking Sticks Discussions strategy which you can read about here on my Teaching Resources blog.

Comparing New Years

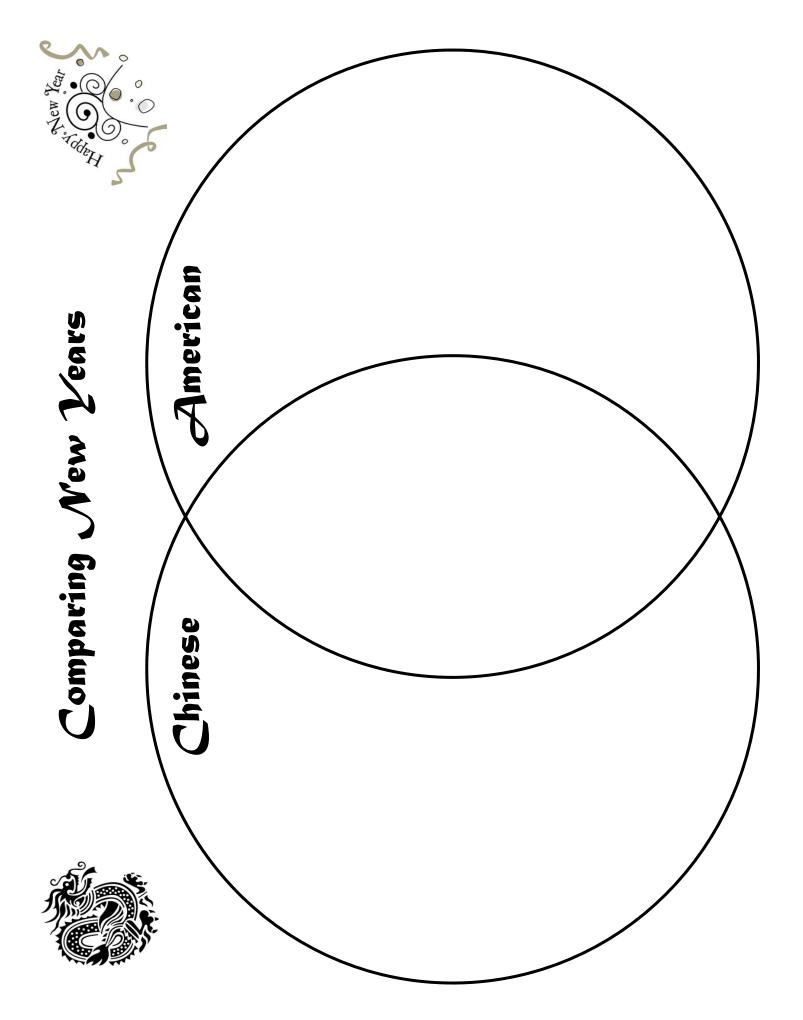

American and Chinese New Year Facts

People celebrate with cheering and loud noise.	The calendar year is based on solar (sun) cycle.
The calendar year is based on the lunar (moon) cycle.	The first day of the new year is always January 1st.
The first day of the new year is different each year.	The years are named after 12 different animals.
People make new year resolutions or promises.	Everyone in the country turns a year older on the same day.
Parents give children red envelopes with "good luck" money.	Black-eyed peas are served on New Year's Day for good luck.
The new year is started by cleaning house to sweep out bad luck.	People celebrate with parades and fireworks.
People spend time with family and friends.	People sing "Auld Lang Syne" at midnight.
Baby symbolizes new year and new beginnings.	At midnight families pray to ancestors for a good year and then enjoy a fancy dinner.

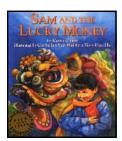

Comparing New Years Answer Key

Color Coding: American Both Chinese
People celebrate with cheering and loud noise.	The calendar year is based on solar (sun) cycle.
The calendar year is based on the lunar (moon) cycle.	The first day of the new year is always January 1st.
The first day of the new year is different each year.	The years are named after 12 different animals.
People make new year resolutions or promises.	Everyone in the country turns a year older on the same day.
Parents give children red envelopes with "good luck" money.	Black-eyed peas are served on New Year's Day for good luck.
The new year is started by cleaning house to sweep out bad luck.	People celebrate with parades and fireworks.
People spend time with family and friends.	People sing "Auld Lang Syne" at midnight.
Baby symbolizes new year and new beginnings.	At midnight families pray to ancestors for a good year and then enjoy a fancy dinner.

Sam and the Lucky Money

Team Discussion Cards*

What is lucky money?

Why don't you think Sam was hungry after he entered the bakery?

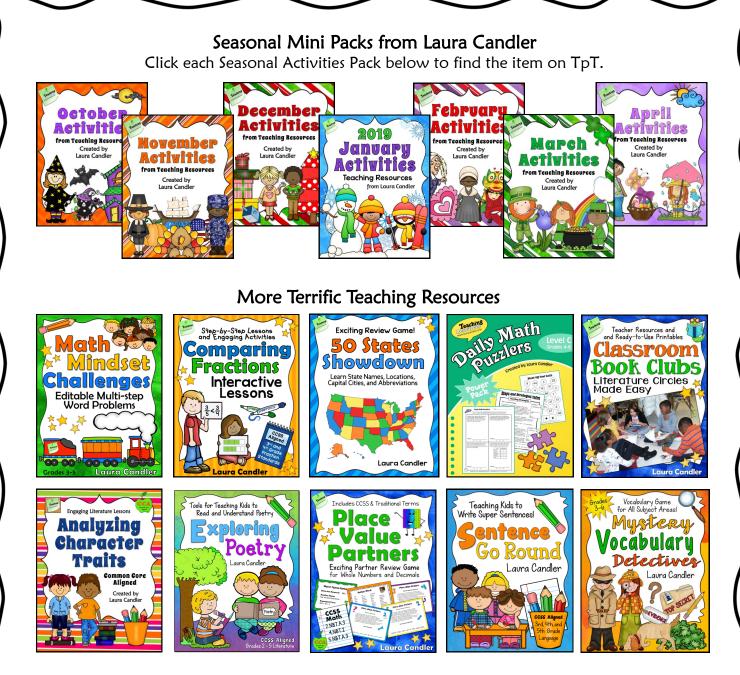

What are some of the traditions surrounding the Chinese New Year?

What do you think is the theme or author's message of this story? Why was Sam startled when he bumped into the old man?

How did Sam feel at the toy store? (How did his feelings change while he was there?)

What made Sam feel lucky in this story?

What character traits describe Sam? Give at least one supporting detail for each trait.

Copyright and Permission Info

I hope you enjoy this freebie! Because this resource is free, you may share it with others as long as you keep the packet intact with the copyright visible on each page. However, you may not upload it to your own site or store as a free or paid product, and you may not include it as a part of another resource. Thanks for understanding! ~ Laura Candler

For more great teaching resources, click here to subscribe to my email list. You'll receive exclusive freebies, information about new products, and special offers. Subscribers are also given access to Laura's Best Freebies, a private page with over 75 of my best freebies organized into categories. Thanks for being the kind of teacher who cares enough to seek the very best resources for your students!

